

KING SUMMONS HIS PERSONAL ADVISERS; FORCING SHOW-DOWN

To Discuss His Plans of Marriage With American-Born Mrs. Simpson

CONFER SEPARATELY

Aims at Securing Public Support of His Romance and Marriage

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(INS)—Determined to force a showdown in the controversy over his plans to marry Mrs. Wallie Warfield Simpson, King Edward is summoning his close personal advisers to discuss the issue, it was learned today.

He will confer shortly with Sir Godfrey Thomas, his private secretary, Sir John Ald, his equerry, Lord Brownlow, the Duke of Sutherland and Sir Alfred Du-Cooper, his cabinet spokesman, it was learned.

They are his most trusted personal counsellors and supporters.

The King is expected to confer separately with each in order not to excite attention and avoid appearance of a crisis.

In all probabilities, King Edward will discuss a method of replying to the opposition and obtaining public support of his romance and marriage intentions.

It was considered conceivable the King may even discuss the possibility of appealing direct to the people.

The editorial campaign in the provinces on the heels of the Bishop of Bradford's criticism of the monarch has brought King Edward face to face with the gravest crisis of his life, with not only his future but the future of the British monarchy's relations with its people seen hanging in the balance.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(INS)—The gravest constitutional crisis England has faced in a century existed today as the British public for the first time became aware of the turmoil caused by King Edward's intention to marry Mrs. Wallie Warfield Simpson.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, it was stated on highest authority, has acquainted the King with his intention to resign unless the King abandons his projected marriage.

An answer from the monarch has been requested for today. On all sides, opinion was expressed that King Edward, faced with formidable and mounting opposition to his plans, will not choose to plunge the nation into a serious political and constitutional crisis.

Coronation preparations went ahead with the usual crop of new British dominion announcements, but beneath the outwardly unruffled waters of state there was severe tension.

The Bishop of Bradford's pointed reminder to the King of his "duties" and "need of God's grace," coupled with immediate reaction in the provincial press by means of editorials which have not been so strongly worded about the monarchy since the days of Queen Victoria's temporary unpopularity, served to set the country by the ears.

The view was generally held that now the matter has been brought into the open, King Edward must make an immediate decision one way or another. It was felt that the King has had it forcibly brought home to him that no matter how great his personal popularity may be, a considerable portion of the nation is out of sympathy with his off-repeated declaration that his private life is his own and not a matter for the public so long as he fulfills his duties as monarch to the best of his abilities.

In this connection, the Birmingham Post had this to say: "The Bishop of Bradford's words are words of reproof—such reproof as nobody has thought proper to address to the King in many a long day."

"They are not necessarily to be condemned as mere impertinence. But a large section of the English people will inevitably ask what they mean. He must be assumed to have fully satisfied."

TO ERECT LIBRARY MEMORIAL SHELF

Honoring the Late Mrs. Fredda Bryan, Member of Newtown Library Board

NAME PLATE ON SHELF

NEWTOWN, Dec. 2.—In memory of Mrs. Fredda Bryan, a board member for many years, the directors of the Newtown library have started a memorial shelf. The books, already six in number, will have a name plate in the front with an appropriate inscription.

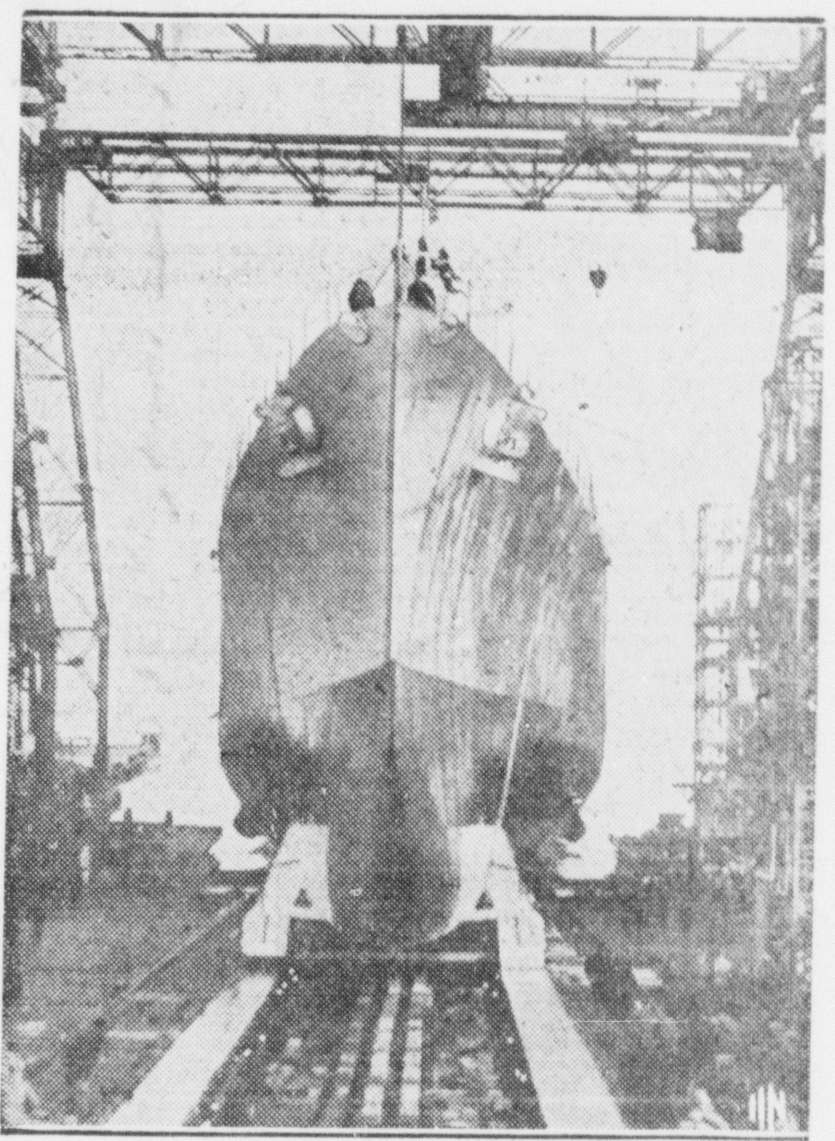

The library has valuable collection of old books which are exhibited in glass cases arranged by Edward Barnsley. Two of the most important are bound volumes of Gentleman's Magazine, one issue containing the last writing of Dr. Samuel Johnson, and a book of poems by an American Samuel Johnson published by his grandsons. One of them, E. M. Paxson, a chief justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, founded the Newtown Friends' Home.

Three other books of the collection contain book plates bearing the names of old residents of Newtown and vicinity. In Volume V. of Cecilia, the Memoirs of An Heiress, is the name of Dr. James Tate, a prominent military surgeon during the Revolution, who lived in Middletown Township.

Oliver Hough's name, which was borne by two men, father and son living near Newtown in the last century, is in the Volume II. of Religion Perfection by Richard Lucas, published in 1774.

Henry Ward, probable descendant of Joseph Ward, who lived in Newtown Township, has his nameplate in "The Modern Part of a Universal History," by the authors of the Antient Part.

Newest U. S. Watchdog

As Miss Kathryn Jane Lackey, daughter of Rear Admiral Lackey, cracked the traditional champagne bottle on the vessel's steel prow, the newest addition to the United States' cruiser fleet, the Brooklyn (above), slid down the ways at Brooklyn, N. BRIDGE IS NOT TO BE DESTROYED IMMEDIATELY

No Orders for Destruction of Covered Span at Washington Crossing Given

IS NOW DETERIORATING

NEW HOPE, Dec. 2.—Dr. John A. Flood, superintendent of Washington Crossing State Park, states that no definite time has been set for demolition of the old covered bridge 'hat at one time served its purpose near the Thompson-Neeley House, in the park. According to the superintendent, the bridge will, without doubt, be destroyed, but no orders have been received as yet to commence work.

It was planned, when removed to make way for highway improvements, to preserve the ancient structure, and place it across the Lehigh Valley canal. Since that time the bridge has rapidly deteriorated alongside the canal.

The estimated cost to place such over the canal, and make it useable, would be $30,000. Extensive fills would be required for such plans to be carried out, says Dr. Flood. In addition one-fourth mile of roadway would have to be built.

That expense is not considered justified by a great many persons—in view of the fact that the old covered bridge has lost its roof and sides and that much more of it is in bad repair. In addition to this, as it now stands, it is not the historic structure a great many persons consider it, because about thirty years ago it was raised about three feet in height.

The first bridge at the site from which the present span was removed was constructed of roughhewn logs by the early settlers. They were led, according to legend, by John Piddock, the man for whom the creek, which later gave way to the canal, was named.

1500 FAIL TO PAY TAXES IN MORRISVILLE BOROUGH

Delinquent Notices Are Now Being Forwarded to Those Who Are in Arrears

HANDICAPS BOROUGH

MORRISVILLE, Dec. 2.—More than 1,500 Morrisville residents have failed to pay their 1936 borough taxes, according to an announcement of Tax Collector Neal Nolan. Delinquent notices are now being forwarded to those in arrears. A demand will be made for immediate settlement and all property taxes which remain unpaid by May 1 next will be entered against the property.

With this large number of unpaid taxes on the records, members of Common Council find the borough's financial condition unsatisfactory and as a result it was necessary recently for Council to borrow $7,000 to pay borough bills. The finance committee is also planning to make another loan at the end of the year unless a large number of these delinquent taxpayers pay their bills very shortly.

The borough's financial condition is also partly due to the WPA work which has been done and is being completed in the borough, especially drainage and street improvements. At the time the budget was set up it was believed that this work would not be done this year and no allowance was made. After the projects were approved, Council was obligated to have the work proceed and if necessary procure the borough's share of the costs from other sources.

KNOW YOUR STATE

Where Pennsylvanians Live

(Prepared for The Courier by F. A. Pitkin, Director Pennsylvania State Planning Board.)

In Colonial days the great majority of Pennsylvanians were farmers. Only a small percentage settled in towns, where ways of earning a living were few. Farmers raised or fashioned most of the things they needed. But the nineteenth century brought a great change. Machines were invented to do much of the work formerly done by hand, and in the cities factories were opened. Sons and daughters of farmers left the country to work in these factories and stores.

In the half century before 1930, Pennsylvanians moved steadily from the country toward the city. By 1930 less than one-third of the population was living in the country, and only one-twelfth was on farms. More than two-thirds of the State's people were dwelling in boroughs or cities of more than 2,500 population. Of these urban dwellers more than half were in cities of 50,000 or more.

The depression, starting in 1929, caused a sudden turn in the tide. Between 1930 and 1934 people started going back to the land. A survey made by Civil Works Administration workers in 1934, indicated that most Pennsylvania cities of more than 25,000 lost

Funeral Service for President's Bodyguard

Buenos Aires, Dec. 12.—Closing his ears to the tumult of world acclaim that followed his historical address inaugurating the inter-American conference for the maintenance of peace, President Roosevelt bowed his head in tribute to a good and powerful servant today. All other considerations were cast aside as the American chief executive lead the mourners at the funeral services for Augustus Adolph (Gus) Gennerich, his bodyguard for 8 years, who died of a heart attack Sunday, after his arrival with the President in Buenos Aires.

With tightly compressed lips and misty eyes, the President gave visible evidence of his sorrow over Gennerich's sudden death.

Probably no man had really been closer to him in the past 8 years than Gus Gennerich.

Services for the faithful "Gus" were held in a large room of the American embassy. His coffin was draped in an American flag and on its top were banks of flowers. American marines and Argentine police in smart blue uniforms alternated in standing honor guard over the casket before and after the funeral services.

Charles V. Ellis, captain of the cruiser Indianapolis read the Episcopal services, while the President sat at the foot of the casket. Secretary of State Cordell Hull and other members of the American delegation to the Pan-American conference attended, as well as the American ambassador and members of his staff.

"VISION" IS SUBJECT AT SUNDAY SCHOOL PROGRAM

C. Burnley White Gives An Address at Fifth District S. S. Rally in Emille

R. HEDRICK PRESIDES

EMILIE, Dec. 2.—Rallying to increased activity and greater zeal for the season ahead, members of the Fifth District, Bucks County Sabbath School Association, gathered in Emille M. E. Church, last evening.

A devotional period was followed by an address by C. Burnley White, superintendent of Newportville Sunday School, who chose as his subject "Vision," the text being taken from the 29th chapter of Proverbs, "Where there is no vision, the people perish." Mr. White, a tireless worker in church circles, delivered an excellent address, one which issued a real challenge to each individual present. Illustrations used concerned men of years gone by, whose visions had led to great accomplishments. William Clarkson's vision of emancipation of slaves was recalled; and Neal Dow with his vision of the prohibition amendment. The need of spiritual vision by each person today, with the resultant accomplishments, were impressed on the congregation. The vision of the Apostle Peter, who was called from the shores of Galilee to go forth to a life directed entirely by vision was brought to mind. Paul's complete change through his road-side vision was told in detail. "Despite the fact that the vision resulted eventually in death for Paul, it meant life for countless others," concluded the speaker.

Ralston Hedrick, Croydon, president of the district organization, was the presiding officer. Mr. Hedrick reviewed the progress of the association.

The Rev. A. McCaughey, pastor of Emille, Fallsington and Tullytown M. E. Churches, offered prayer. The Rev. Weller, Morrisville M. E. Church, read the Scripture lesson for the evening; and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Andrew G. Solla, pastor of Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, Bristol. A number of hymns were sung by the 60 attending who represented all parts of the district.

LOWER BUCKS SCOUT DISTRICT GOES "OVER TOP" FOR BOYHOOD

108% Attained, It Is Reported At Session of District Leaders

DINNER IS SERVED HERE

Units Having Outstanding Membership Records Are Publicly Listed

Lower Bucks District has gone "over the top" for boyhood. One hundred and eight per cent has been attained. The greatest number of cubs, scouts and seascouts ever registered in the district was 308 in 1931. Today, here are 332! The achievement of the new record is one of the tenth birthday objectives of the Bucks County Scouting Council. All of the local district officers, commissioners, leaders and committeemen have been working energetically to give more scouting to the youth of Lower Bucks.

These facts were brought out at a meeting of Scouting leaders of the district in the Keystone Hotel last evening, following a dinner.

Units having outstanding membership records are Bristol Presby. Unit Troop No. 1 (Scoutmaster Herbert A. Pettit, Jr.), Bristol Troop No. 3 sponsored by the Colored Churches of Bristol, Edgely Troop (Scoutmaster Ronald Swain), Bristol Troop No. 7 (Scoutmaster Wesley Hart), Cornwells Scout Troop (Scoutmaster Robert Geiger), Newportville Scout Troop (Scoutmaster Lewis Munster), Newportville Cub Pack (Cubmaster Becker), and Andalusia Scout Troop (Scoutmaster George Bloch). Four units that have been organized since 1931 have added their memberships to the record; Andalusia Cub Pack (Cubmaster Joseph Kish), Andalusia Seascout Ship "Wasp" (Skipper Raymond Vickers), St. Francis Troop No. 1 (Scoutmaster Joseph Meehan), and St. Francis Troop No. 2 (Scoutmaster Harry Behm). Considerable credit goes to Brother Edwin of the St. Francis Industrial School troops for the complete co-operation he has given in the furthering of Scouting at the school.

District Commissioner Herbert A. Pettit was delighted when Scout Executive William F. Livermore made the announcement of the gaining of the membership goal.

Neighborhood Commissioners who have worked for the objective have been David Neil, Joseph Mountney and J. Russell Ellis, of Bristol; William Walman, of Croydon; William F. Amick, of Cornwells; and Harry E. Oliver, of Andalusia. Field Commissioners who are specialist in their respective Scouting work have added their "Mt." Field Commissioner of Senior Scouting A. E. Stiles of Croydon and Field Commissioner of Cubbing Horace P. Townsend, of Langhorne. The pleasure and knowledge of the advancement opportunities provided in the Scouting program through Merit Badge Review Boards directed by Field Commissioners William Taylor, Bristol, and Jesse Wendkos of Andalusia have made Scouting interesting to the Scouts and Seascouts. It has been the result of every-body working together.

Walter W. Pitkonka was unanimously elected for a third term as District Chairman of Lower Bucks. Re-elected with Mr. Pitkonka were Paul V. Forster, Bristol, and William

Doylestown Teacher Dies; Ill Since July

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 2.—One of Bucks County's best known school teachers, Harriet H. Lear, died at her home, 192 North Main street, yesterday, following an illness since last July. Miss Lear's death was caused by a streptococcus infection.

Just four weeks ago yesterday, Miss Lear's father, Asher R. Lear, former Doylestown business man and one-time tipstaff at the Bucks County Court House, died at his Doylestown home.

Miss Lear, a teacher in the primary grades of the Doylestown public schools from 1905 up until the time of the illness that caused her death, taught many of this community's business and professional men and women when they were youngsters. She was always a well-known figure at the annual Bucks County Teachers' Institute.

Born in Carversville, Miss Lear was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Asher R. Lear. She received her early education in the local schools and graduated from Stroudsburg State Normal School. She first taught school in Buckingham township prior to moving to Doylestown in 1904, and then taught in the Cheltenham Township schools for two years, after which she became a member of the faculty of the Doylestown public school, when Arthur Phillips was supervising principal.

Miss Lear was a member of the Village Improvement Association, of Doylestown, and St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church. She is survived by Norman W. Lear, of East Court street, Doylestown, a brother.

FOR THE TOURIST TRADE

White man's rule, which for a long time offered the Indian a choice between extermination or adoption of the ways of the white man, now is to reverse its policy and try to persuade Indians who are wards of the Government to revert to the culture of their ancestors. At the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Washington, a policy is in preparation to assist Indians to revive the arts and crafts practiced by their tribes in early days.

The Indians are to be helped to adapt their skill to the production of articles most likely to sell to tourists. On some reservations Indian workmen are turning out embroidered cloths and bowls hammered from copper. Since archery is becoming a fad among sport-loving whites, it is suggested that Indians might find profit in making bows and arrows for sale.

But such proposals are meeting with opposition from the Indians. Graduates of Carlisle and proud Indian families who have been taught from childhood to perfect themselves in the ways of their white neighbors, do not readily revert to paint and feathers and to sitting crosslegged on the ground bartering with white visitors.

Teachers will need tact, but they are offering a real opportunity to the Indian people. The original culture in arts and crafts of the Indians is well worth preserving, and its products will find ready market among the millions of tourists who annually visit districts where Indian traditions survive.

RE-EMPLOYMENT CAMPAIGN

Nobody, unless it is the unemployed themselves, has a more intimate interest in the success of the re-employment campaign proposed by the United States Chamber of Commerce than the very employers making up the membership of this organization.

Only an early diminution of unemployment sufficient to demonstrate that, in spite of official and unofficial forebodings, the present shortage of jobs is not after all a lasting condition that will forestall renewed legislative efforts to "share the work." A return to this sort of legislation is viewed with misgivings by most businessmen, and, we believe, by a majority of disinterested observers. Yet it is threatened and certainly will have popular support, if not soon proved unnecessary.

Businessmen, consequently, have a very real stake in making good on their promise to push re-employment, quite apart from the direct contribution it may make to the general welfare.

It is not inconceivable that a campaign such as that now proposed will bear fruit, even if it does no more than to condition the average employer's thinking in the direction of a more liberal employment policy. That should not be so difficult in these hopeful times, particularly when failure very probably may mean the Government will try its hand at the task.

A pleasing feature of the home building pick-up, from the juvenile standpoint, is an abundance of curly shavings, for the Shirley Temple impersonation.

Among his rules for longevity, old Mr. Rockefeller says he never lost interest in things. And compounded at 6 per cent, it adds up.

KITCHEN WISDOM

Helpful pastry hints are ever welcome! Do not grease a pie pan. Pies will slip out more readily if you dust the pan with flour. If made correctly, your pie crust will grease its own pan. A few drops of almond extract will add subtle flavor to canned cherry peach or apricot pie. The pie will taste as if a few pits had been left in.

Use your alarm clock for baking! Set the alarm to ring at the time the cake or pastry should be removed from the oven.

White cotton stockings are being worn by the best rolling pins. Cover the pin with a child's white cotton ribbed stocking with the foot cut off. Rub full of flour.

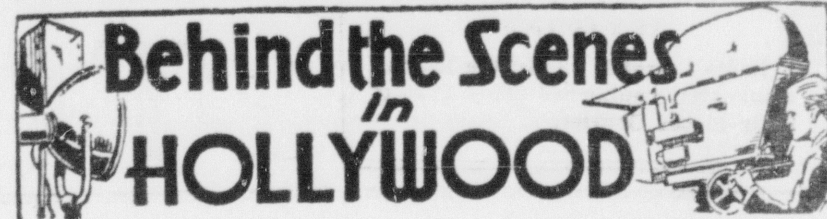

Juice in fruit pies may be thickened by the addition of flour, soft bread crumbs, tapioca, or fine cracker crumbs to the sugar, before it is added to the pie.

The juice of half a lemon will add tang and flavor to some fruit pies.

HOLLYWOOD—The Paramount legal department gets the unusual assignment of drawing up a defense brief that would have acquitted a man convicted of manslaughter in the middle of the last century.

It adds up like this. In the picture, "Souls at Sea", the studio is borrowing a page from the court records of New England. A ship foundered after hitting an iceberg and there was not enough room in the lifeboats for all those on board. The women were taken care of, but there remained the question of which men to save. In this emergency, a skipper, who happened to be a passenger on the sinking boat, conducted one of the most extraordinary kangaroo courts in history.

He selected the men whom he thought had the most right to live. The others were doomed to die, and did when the vessel went down.

This dramatic episode will be used in the picture and Gary Cooper will play the skipper.

But, in real life, the self-appointed judge, though hailed as a hero for saving 42 people, was convicted of manslaughter for which he received a very light sentence.

Paramount wants Cooper to be acquitted in the story. So smart movie lawyers are delving into the maritime laws of the day to figure out a defense that would have saved a man convicted of manslaughter in an actual case more than 90 years ago.

Wynne Gibson's story of a door-man at the exclusive Del Monte hotel is convulsing her pals. The actress and several friends drove up to the California-Stanford junction in Wynne's car and a trailer. On the way, they stopped at the Del Monte hotel. As the trailer pulled up in front of the swank hostelry, Wynne got out. She was smartly dressed and wore a green orchid.

The startled doorman took one look at her and blurted out: "How blasé!"

"LOVE'S LITANY" by Hazel Livingston

SYNOPSIS

Christine Cooper, 17 and lovely, is the daughter of the rich and eccentric Adolphus Cooper who made his money in the Klondike, never speaks of the past and hates cities. While he dreams of the great things he will do for Christie by and by, she becomes secretly engaged to a childhood sweetheart, Gene Dubois, who promptly breaks her heart by forbidding her to speak of their love to anyone. Not having heard from Gene for a few days and anxious to know if he returned from his fishing trip, Christie, under the pretext of purchasing cream, goes to his home. Christie is confused when Gene's mother tells her in one breath that he has gone and in the next that he came back.

CHAPTER VII

They were back in the glare of the yard now, the cool cellar was closed behind them.

"But I thought you said he was gone!"

Madame Dubois looked at the talkative little Cooper girl, and roused herself from her own melancholy thoughts. "He came home from the mount'n, and he got away to Sacramento—Now you run 'long, I got plentea work to do!"

Christie stood stock still in the glaring sun. "To Sacramento? Did you say he went to Sacramento? What FOR?"

The tired old woman shook her head sadly. These American children who ask questions! What you wear that shawl for, Madame Dubois? Why you keep the little cows away from their mamas? Why can't Adrienne come out and play? And now—why did Gene go to Sacramento?

"Sure, he went to work, what you tink?"

And she went inside, and shut the screen door.

Next morning a letter came from him. Christie took it up to her room, to read. Before she tore it open she laid the envelope next to her cheek, knelt by her bed waiting for the first dizzy excitement to pass. Her face was fiery red, her whole body was shaking. Being in love seemed to have something to do with getting sick to your stomach.

The letter wasn't very long. Just two sheets of white, ruled paper.

"Dear Christie—

Well, you will be surprised to see I am back in civilization. My uncle did not get that job, so I got a break, and here I am back at the gas pump, and miss you already.

Now, Christie, I want a letter from you and I want to know how you are, and if you still remember me (Ha, ha!).

Well, Christie, I am not much of a letter writer, I would rather see you, but I will do my best to let you know how I am from time to time and until I can see you.

The reason I did not say goodbye was because I left the same night I got home and I did not care to go to Platts and I did not. You know why.

I am looking for a better opening here and have hopes. You know what I mean. I will now close, with love from,

Yours sincerely,

GENE F. DUBOIS,

Gen Del, Sacramento." As she read the tears rolled steadily down her cheeks, blistering the paper. She did not know that she was weeping. She only knew that the words she needed weren't there.

And then, tucked away in the envelope, she found four lines clipped out of a newspaper:

"In the grey summer garden I shall find you, With day-break and the morning hills behind you. There will be rain-wet roses; stir of wings; And down the wood a thrush that wakes and sings."

And scribbled on the margin, in Gene's writing, "This is a thing called Idyll. It is by a poet named Siegfried Sassoon."

The words blurred under her eyes.

These were the thoughts that were in his heart for her. This was the verse that he himself would guest, who wouldn't say a word against the place, if it killed her.

Short, stout, always handsomely groomed in pale silks that never mussed, never seemed to grow dirty nor dingy no matter how high the thermometer climbed, she moved about the big, rambling house or feet that seemed too small for her heavy body, and shoes that must have been too small for her pump high arched feet. Her white, ringed hands picked up glasses and spilled pipe tobacco, newspapers, dusty sofa cushions, even bones that the dogs dragged in. "I can't ask the servants to do things like that," she said. "It's hard enough to find any that will stay at all, in a place like this—"

The frequent wrangling between write some day. Dear Gene . . . he just couldn't write that kind of a letter . . .

She wept again, because she had misjudged him.

That night Adolphus Cooper ate bacon and eggs and fried bread with more than his usual gusto. He drank two cups of coffee from the flower-bordered pint-size cup that he used only when Aunt Nettie was away.

Your aunt and the girls'll be getting back Saturday," he said, glancing at Christie without any change of expression. "Seems they caught a boat earlier than they expected to. I guess they run out of money, or got too much poi and ukelele. 'T any rate, I gotta go meet 'em. I don't s'pose you care to come along?"

"Oh I do!" she cried so eagerly that she surprised, and vaguely frightened herself. "I do want to go. I won't be left home alone again—ever!"

And so Aunt Nettie and the girls came back, and soon they were all settled again in the house at Spanish Pass.

Settled. No, that wasn't the word. Aunt Nettie had never settled in the old brown house that Adolphus and Christie loved. She was a permanent guest. A gentle, tactful

"Dere Santa" ---

YOU, as Santa's representative, are on the lookout for these trustful childish messages. You're watching for the chance lists of "What I'd like" scribbled idly on feminine desk blotters — for a husband's pocketed memorandum on the perfect tobacco pouch or essential trout flies.

Such clues are invaluable in the pleasant, hectic business of Christmas shopping. But—what about the people who don't write them? The inarticulate, grown-up, far away?

Look on certain pages of this newspaper to find all those missing, unwritten letters to Santa Claus.

Let the advertising tell you as clearly as if you heard her voice that Aunt Mabel will exclaim with joy at this particularly new hostess set. That your mother's practical fingers for once are aching to explore the mysteries of that glamorous cosmetics box. That difficult Cousin Will will melt with gratitude before the machine to make his toast without distracting him from his newspaper.

You can trust the advertising to report unflinchingly what people all over the country are saying, seeing, wanting at any time of year. And that's only one of its functions. Advertised products are always the best and most reliable purchases, as well as the most welcome gifts.

Drunken Drivers Before Court Session

State Highway Patrolman C. A. Jones, of the South Langhorne substation, testified that the defendant was operating a car, without an operator's license and also without the owner's consent, on the Bristol Road, October 5, when Patrick Morris, who was riding in the rumble seat, was killed after the car collided with an electric light pole on the Bristol Road.

The defendant was operating his brother's car, but has never had an operator's license.

Taking the stand in his own defense, the steeplejack testified that he was not driving fast, but that he must have hit some obstacle or a rut in the road which made the car crash into the electric light pole.

The defendant gave himself up to the police in Philadelphia, when he learned that Morris died in a hospital a short time after being admitted.

Pleading guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, James P. McLaughlin, Mechanicsville, was sentenced by President Judge Hiram H. Keller to pay the costs of prosecution and serve not less than 30 days nor more than 60 days in the County Prison.

James P. J. Delaney, of Philadelphia, who was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor August 12 on the Bethlehem Pike, near Souderton, was acquitted by a jury on Monday afternoon before President Judge Hiram H. Keller and directed that the costs be placed on the county.

Charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, Frank Shephard, went on trial before Judge Keller on Monday afternoon. Shephard, a resident of Trenton, N. J., was convicted of drunken driving by a jury.

President Judge Hiram H. Keller sentenced the defendant to serve not less than two months nor more than three years in the County Prison.

Shephard was arrested by Corporal R. D. Evans following an accident on the Newtown-Yardley road Sept. 27 after running into a tank on the property of James W. Eastep.

Shephard's defense was that his wife was operating his car.

"I personally feel that you committed perjury in your testimony," said President Judge Keller.

Pleading guilty to stealing jewelry and $25 in money, Lester James Hersh, 21, of Pleasant Valley, went on trial before Judge Boyer yesterday.

The youthful defendant stated he kept the money and jewelry in his car.

The defendant, who was born in Garyville, testified his mother and father both died before he was a year old.

Of the money which he stole, about $20 was in gold. Hersh was employed by a Mr. Bernheim from whom the money and jewelry were taken. Raymond Fluck, Springfield township farmer, the present employer of the defendant, testified Hersh is a good farmhand and goes out maybe once a week at night.

Victor Search, a character witness, described the defendant as having a good reputation.

"Don't you think you made a fool of yourself to steal money to run an automobile? You apparently had a good reputation and now you have ruined it with one foolish act," said Judge Boyer to the young farmhand in pronouncing sentence.

The defendant was placed on probation for a period of three years on condition that he pay the costs of prosecution, pay $10 for the value of chair not returned to Mr. Bernheim, and also that he return a watch loaned to him.

The cost of prosecution is to be paid at rate of $5 a month.

Sheriff Horace E. Gwinner was appointed probation officer.

Pleading guilty to drunken driving, Russell Wyant, of Morrisville, went on trial before Judge Boyer yesterday morning.

Wyant was arrested by Chief of Police Cooper, of Morrisville, after colliding with a bakery wagon.

Wyant admitted having taken several beers.

Walter Beck, of Croydon, who pleaded guilty to drunken driving, also went on trial before Judge Boyer.

Beck collided with a car in Croydon driven by Walter Hetherington who resides on the same street as the defendant.

We run our house on the Huddle System!

MAYBE two can live as cheaply as one—on a desert island.

But right after we married, Jim and I soon found out that running a house costs money—more, we first thought, than we could manage to scrape together.

Things are easier now. It took a while for us to learn, but we have the plan down pat. Jim calls it our "huddle system."

There really isn't any trick about it. We have a budget, of course—so much for food, clothes, amusements, luxuries, vacation. But having a budget is one thing. Making it work is another. There's where the system comes in.

Religiously, each day, we read the advertisements in this paper—together. Jim looks for the things he is most interested in—suits, shirts, golf equipment, books, smoking supplies. I look out for myself—shoes, dresses, a winter coat, cosmetics. Both of us keep our eyes open for household needs—furniture, draperies, bathroom accessories, linens. Then we go into a "huddle"—report to each other—check over our budget—spend what we can for what we feel we need—and save!

Careful buying, Jim says, is the secret of saving money. But careful reading of advertising, we both agree, comes first!

ANDALUSIA ELEVEN TO MEET ST. ANN'S HERE

Quite a bit of interest has been stirred about the coming football game to be played Sunday afternoon on Landreth field as the Andalusia Greed Wave and the St. Ann's Golden Avalanche renew grid relations after a lapse of over a decade. The contest may prove to be the most colorful of the season for the local football patrons.

Incidentally, Andalusia was the first club that a St. Ann's eleven ever beat. Some seventeen years ago, the first St. Ann's eleven put its appearance on the field and for three consecutive seasons, the Purple and Gold boys failed to check in with a victory. Then came a game with Andalusia. For three periods, the boys battled to toe and nail and neither could penetrate the other's defense. Finally, St. Ann's got a break and Tony Baile recovered a fumble on Andalusia's twenty-six yard line.

An end run failed to net any gain and two line thrusts proved fatal. Quarterback, "Freddie" Pico then called "Shine" Gilardi from his wing post and put him in the backfield to try for a field goal. Gilardi made a perfect boot from the thirty-six yard line and the three-pointer was enough to win the game. Andalusia never forgot this and after fourteen years has elapsed is coming to Bristol for a long-sought revenge. Old-timers from Andalusia who remember this tilt are coming to Landreth's field strong to back up Joe Diamanti's boys against the Wood streeters.

Andalusia at the present time boasts of a winning streak of eight straight games. They have been Clearfield, Warrington, Northeast All-Stars, Germantown, Morrisville, Tioke, Arlington and Iona, in succession and earlier in the season nosed out Alco, 6-0. Their only defeats were at the hands of Reno and the North Phillies. The Green Wave has a much more impressive record than the boys of Coach "Bill" Dougherty.

At the practice session held by the Saints last night, four players were missing and are on the injured list. The two tackles, "Henny" Kornstedt and "Pluggy" Gallagher may be missing from the tilt on Sunday as well as center Albert Carnvale and halfback Tommy Breslin.

Coach Dougherty will hold another practice drill Friday night and this will be the final preparation of the tilt which has drawn interest from all parts of Bucks County.

"ABOMINABLE"

SZEKESFEHERVAR, Hungary (INS)—John Fekete, a tramp, was sentenced to six years hard labor for assaulting an old beggar, David Takacs, at a roadside. He tied up the old man's hands and robbed him of two pengoes—about forty cents. The judge said it was the most abominable crime he ever dealt with.

YARDLEY ANTICIPATES SUCCESSFUL CAGE SEASON

YARDLEY, Dec. 2—Yardley High School is looking forward to a successful basketball season this year with all members of the varsity team having had at least one year's experience. The season will open on December 11th, when the team will meet the Pennington Varsity on the latter's court. The J. V. teams of the two schools will also play. Robert T. Hughes, of the high school faculty, is coaching the team this year.

Mr. Hughes, varsity center on the West Chester State Teachers' College, has named a tentative opening line-up for the practice game with New Jersey School for the Deaf on December 4th. The players will include Paul Rothermel, with three years' experience as guard, and Donald Hand at the second guard position; Thomas Neely at either center or guard; Donald Bennett at center and Stanley Bennett and Loring Nolan as forwards.

The Junior Varsity for the present will include: William Neely and Robert Neill, guards; Hugh Gannon, center; Willard Coleman, Robert Bebbington and John Fitzgerald, forwards.

Music and Address By State Pres't to Feature

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 2—In addition to an address by the newly-elected president of Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women, at the meeting of Bucks County Council in Doylestown Country Club Friday at two p. m., a quartet from Perkasio will give vocal numbers. The state president, Mrs. Humbert Borton Powell, wife of a well-known Philadelphia lawyer, has been connected with welfare activities for many years, being interested in the associated charities.

Members of the council and all others interested are invited by the county president, Mrs. John W. Cooper, Pineville, to attend this meeting. Mrs. Cooper states that the women of Bucks County consider the recent defeat at the polls as a real challenge, and the Republican Council of Bucks organizations, is moving forward in a fuller program than ever before, aiming toward a bigger and better party.

Reports of delegates to the recent state convention will be received from Mrs. Joseph Palmer, Langhorne; Mrs. William J. Leattor and Mrs. J. Harry Hoffman, Doylestown.

Gunmen Get $80

Philadelphia, Dec. 2—Two gunmen today held up Percy B. Hook, 39, a gasoline station attendant, and escaped with $80, at 7th and Spring Garden streets. The robbery was the third perpetrated by armed bandits in the last 12 hours in this city.

Mrs. Evelyn Buchanan, 45, was held up by a lone bandit and robbed of $10; while three young gun-toters stole a ring valued at $250 from Theodore M. Fox, 56.

"BAD INFLUENCE"

MOHACS, Hungary (INS)—A special school for gypsy children has been set up here in order to protect Hungarian children from the "bad influence" of little gypsies. In the past the gypsies have attended the elementary school of Mohacs. Many of the gypsy girls arrived in the class smoking cigars.

King Summons His Personal Advisers; Forcing Show-Down

bed himself that gossip, rumor and highly circumstantial tale-telling as to one particular phase of His Majesty's private life is not without its basis in solid truth.

"And he must be allowed to speak but the truth himself when he gives warning that in the eyes of the people of this country as in the eyes of subjects of the Crown overseas, the private and public life of the King-Emperor are inseparable."

The Manchester Guardian, after stating that last Friday's cabinet meeting was concerned with a "domestic problem that involves... relations between the King and his ministers and his readiness to be guided... by the Premier," declared that no doubt can be held as to the validity of such a principle.

The Guardian then proceeded to invoke the name of King George as an object lesson for his son.

"One cannot think," this powerful Liberal organ said, "our present King, mindful of the nationally beloved example of his father, would seek in any way to disturb relations between the monarch and his ministers as they existed during twenty-five years of the last reign."

"With the life of his father as example and the advice of his ministers as guide, King Edward, who came to the throne supported by immense reserves of good-will of the people of this and other countries in our Commonwealth, can hardly fail in the onerous and responsible task of kingship."

While the wall of reserve in dealing with the King's romance and the Constitutional crisis has not yet been broken down by the big London metropolitan dailies, the tide of editorial opinion continued to run unchecked in the provinces.

To the numerous comments and criticisms already voiced, the Darling-ton Northern Echo today added this: "The Bishop of Bradford's reference to the King raises directly personal aspects of the responsibility of the occupants of the throne to give a lead according to standards which can be generally observed and publicly claimed."

G. Lange, Sr., of Andalusia. Mr. Pitzenka replied to the complimentary remarks of Nominating Committee chairman Ronald Swain by saying, "I am glad to lead you for another year. It is a privilege for us men to work for the youth of our district. It is a pleasure to work with men who are willing to give of their spare time to work for Scouting. Men throughout our communities in Lower Bucks should give of themselves to make scouting available to every boy and young man. Let us increase our 322 to an even greater number. We will meet the challenge of the new year before us." Mr. Lange thanked the Board members for their confidence in him, and promised a continuation of his willing work for Scouting. Mr. Forster was away on a business trip, and could not be present.

Reports were received on the progress of the Cub Packs, Scout Troops, and Seascout Ships of Lower Bucks. Problems were discussed and helpful advice was given. Surveys of advancement, and membership were given by Scout Executive Livermore. The 1937 Bucks County Council program was adopted, and three District Board meetings in March, June and December were decided upon for the first Tuesday of each of those months.

The Board discussed, approved and made recommendations on the reports of the Bucks County Council Committees. They were given by Joseph Kish (Cubbing), Herbert A. Pettit (Organization), Walter W. Pitzenka (Finance and Training), and Wm. F. Livermore (Camp, Camping and Educational). Dr. J. J. Willaman, the National Headquarters Representative of the Scouting Council served as temporary chairman during the election of officers. Rev. L. H. Willhite said Grace, and reported on the excellent progress of Bristol Troop No. 3.

District No. 1 (Lower Bucks) has advanced from sixth place in Council Advancement to fourth place in past five months. Credit for improvement in the advancement record goes to Bristol Troop No. 1 (Scoutmaster Herbert A. Pettit, Sr.), Andalusia Troop (Scoutmaster George Bloss), Bristol Troop No. 7 (Scoutmaster Wesley Hart), and Newportville Troop (Scoutmaster Lewis Minster).

Reed Weller and Ronald Swain spoke of the progress being made in Edgely with an effort being made to increase Scoutcraft advancement through the cooperation of the troop committeemen. Cubmaster Becker reported more boys joining the Newportville Pack, and Scoutmaster Lewis Minster announced additional Scouts were joining the troop. Neighborhood Commissioner William Wainmen said that the Croydon Scout Troop was nearly uniformed, the Seascope Ship was making progress under the leadership of Skipper Floyd Peters, and that a leader is being secured for the Cub Pack.

Scoutmaster Herbert A. Pettit was congratulated on the good record being made by his troop. The progress being made at St. Francis Industrial School was related by Scoutmaster Harry Behm. The Andalusia Group continues its fine work under the able leadership of Joseph Kish, Cubs; George Bloss, Scouts; and Raymond Vickers, Seascouts. Neighborhood Commissioner David Neill reported the acceptance of the Scoutmastership of Bristol No. 6, the Methodist Troop, by former Scout, William Warner. There is a possibility that within a short time the Cub Pack will be organized.

Brilliant Brother Teams

By BURNLEY

Brother acts are an old story, but they always make interesting reading, especially when both members of the family are tops in their line. And the 1936 sports season has been especially notable.

Baseball's famous Poison Twins, Paul and Lloyd Waner of Pittsburgh, have captured their share of headlines during the past few years, but 1936 turned out to be one of their banner years. Paul captured the National League batting championship once again, while his kid brother staged a sensational comeback after a layoff due to illness.

The 1936 grid season has been notable for a number of unusual things, not the least of which were the Guepe twins of Marquette. Al and Art Guepe are really twins, as alike as two peas in a pod, and both really extraordinary backfield performers. They staged an act all season that never bored the spectators, and won a lot of games for the Golden Avalanche.

Six-day bike racing, not to be outdone by saner sports, has come up with a new brother duo—the Pedens, Torchy and Doug. Torchy is already established as one of the game's phenomenal pedallers and brother Doug shows promise of following in the big fellows' bike tracks. Both finished among the leaders in the Chicago grid, and are now riding in New York.
